I. Purpose

Mass electronic messaging, as defined below, provides a means to reach large populations of the campus community efficiently. UC Davis provides electronic communications systems for efficient distribution of information to the campus. The UCD Electronic Communications Policy (Section 310-16, Exhibit A, V.D.3) identifies inappropriate mass electronic messaging as an abuse of University electronic communications (EC) resources. This policy addresses the appropriate uses of the EC systems for mass electronic messages on the UCD campus.

A. Mass electronic messaging--includes any unsolicited electronic communication that is sent to 250 or more users. Mass electronic messaging is an unsolicited communication.
